Read the text and answer the question.

The famous author, Stephen King, was broke and struggling when he first started writing. He received sixty rejections before selling his first short story, The Glass Floor, for $35. He was pursuing his goals while he was also working multiple jobs to support his family. In his journey, his wife supported him a lot. Whenever he became desperate or demotivated, she helped him stand up and persevere to go on writing. His iconic thriller book Carrie, which he submitted when he was twenty years old, was rejected by thirty publishers. Despite all the rejections and curveballs that life tossed at him, he never gave up and he could finally find an audience for his writings. Since then, he has published more than fifty books that all became worldwide bestsellers.

It is clear from the passage that

- A) Stephen King started writing when he started high school
- B) He was having financial difficulties in the early years of his career
- C) His wife supported the family financially while he was writing
- D) His book, Carrie, became an iconic thriller as soon as he submitted it
- E) He wouldn't have achieved his goals if he had been rejected one more time
