Soru 1:

Choose the correct option to complete the statement according to the paragraph.

Some people try to convince themselves that they don't need friends at all because they find it difficult to make and keep friends. But there are many good reasons for wanting to have friends. If you are going through hard times, a helping friend can turn the negative sides of life into positive with his/her support and encouragement. Also, having reliable friends around you is important as they can help you build your confidence. By means of those friends, you can even get out and start things that you haven't considered doing on your own, such as sports, social clubs, and so on. Friends who are respectful, hardworking, tolerant, honest, fair, helpful and generous with their time, will be positive influencers in your life by developing those values of yours. Briefly, you need friends, and they need you.

The author of the passage states that...

- A) family members are always more important than friends.
- B) not only you need friends but also they need you.
- C) making friends is easy for everyone.
- D) developing some values is not possible without friends.
- E) it takes some time to make friends and keep them in your life.
