1. Read the text and complete the table.

Food festivals are an important part of city life. They bring people together and introduce different food cultures. Some festivals are local, while others are international.

At local festivals, people usually cook traditional food. For example, at the Adana Orange Blossom Festival, people prepare local dishes, traditional meals, and special desserts made with regional ingredients.

At international festivals, people can taste food from different countries. For example, at the Barcelona International Street Food Festival, visitors can taste tacos, noodles, curry, and couscous. Vendors prepare food at stalls, and people watch how the dishes are cooked. These festivals help people learn about new cuisines and enjoy food from all around the world.

2. Nina and Robert are at the Barcelona International Street Food Festival. Read the dialogue and answer the questions.

Nina: This place is amazing! Is this a local or an international festival?

Robert: It's an international festival.

Nina: What are they cooking at that stall?

Robert: They are making tacos right now. The vendor is stirring the sauce.

Nina: What other food do they serve here?

Robert: They serve noodles, curry, and couscous.

Nina: What do you want to try, tacos or curry?

Robert: Curry, please. I like spicy food.

Nina: I'm eating noodles now. This tastes amazing!

Robert: Yes! What a delicious meal!

Nina: Are you good at cooking international food?

Robert: Not really, but I enjoy watching how they cook it here.

Nina: Me too. I'm full, but I can't stop eating!

@SweetTooth123

I am at the strawberry festival at the moment. There are food stalls serving delicious desserts. I'm full, but I can't stop eating. People are enjoying fresh food, and chefs are baking strawberry cakes and making jam right now. Families are walking around, listening to music, and having fun together. The smell of fresh strawberries is everywhere, and everyone looks happy.
